About this piece

This lamp shade in cranberry glass sits within the Arts and Crafts (1880–1910) period, c.1900. The tall, flared body rises to a broad ruffled frill, its surface worked with a shallow relief leaf pattern that reads through the graduated pink. At 9 inches high, with a wide frill, it makes a practical replacement for late Victorian and Edwardian oil fittings, giving a soft colour cast and a lively edge profile while keeping the outline clear and decorative.
