About this piece

Cabinet in ebonised wood, attributed to Edward William Godwin, aligned to the Aesthetic Movement (1860–1890), 1875, British. The cabinet is raised on ring-turned legs and is composed with a two-door cupboard above a lower shelf, with a raised upper gallery supported on turned uprights.

The cupboard doors are divided into four fielded panels, centred by horizontal tramline moulding and fitted with brass ring handles. Above, the mirrored back sits below the upper shelf, creating a shallow display tier across the top. The lower shelf links the legs and gives the cabinet a light open base beneath the enclosed body.
